A Tether Mixer, also known as a Tether Tumbler is an online service helping tether owners to regain privacy over there USDT

The most way to keep your transactions secret as Tethers, is through a so-called "Tumbler". Exchange would be used by Tether-owners to cash-out after "mixing" their identity by providing their exchange with a different ID card.

The process described as a security feature, is actually a trick from the governments forcing those exchanges to collect and share those personal information with them.

Once that done and because the information has been used by Tether to public, avoid having your ID get too wide to catch your mixer and now have your choice to use your funds.

However, there is a legal way to guarantee your crypto privacy. It's called a Tether USDT Mixer.

How does tether mixer work?

Tether Mixer uses different wallets (crypto) and work in two steps:

They will use one of their liquidity pool to receive your USDT as TRON (TRC20) or Ethereum (ERC20).

Then they will use another of their liquidity pool to provide you with other USDT as TRON (TRC20) or Ethereum (ERC20).

Therefore, the value you will receive on your new wallet after that mixing process will not be related to your original transaction.
